

Alberta Health Services is committed to ensuring patients arriving in an emergency department are assessed and treated in a timely fashion. These measures focus on the total length of stay for patients in the emergency department and receiving treatment until they are admitted as an inpatient or discharged. The length of stay in an emergency department may also be reflective of the overall health system including diagnostic and consultation services, admitting capacity, and access to suitable primary care and disease management. In January 2014, AHS introduced 16 annual performance measures. These measures align with national health care standards and benchmarks and provide AHS with a better understanding of how the Alberta health system is performing compared to the rest of Canada. For more information and targets on these measures, please go to Data, Statistics & Reporting webpage on performance measures at <http://www.albertahealthservices.ca/performance.asp>
