

If you or someone you know needs help for opioid dependency, we can help. The opioid dependency program is open to youth and adults across the province.

What is opioid use disorder?

Opioid use disorder (OUD) is when a person uses opioids even though it causes harm to themselves or others.

A simple way to explore if you are living with opioid use disorder is if you experience any of the 4 Cs:

- Craving
- Loss of Control of the amount or how often you use
- Compulsion to use
- Use despite Consequences.

Opioid use disorder can be a long-lasting condition that may be life-threatening. It can affect anyone of any status, gender, ethnicity or age.

It can be difficult to ask for help due to the fear of stigma. Our care is without judgement.

There is safe and effective treatment for opioid use disorder. Recovery is possible.

Where do you start?

- Walk in to any opioid dependency clinic.
- Call any opioid dependency clinic, the Virtual Opioid Dependency Program or the Addiction Helpline 1-866-332-2322.
- Visit recoveryalberta.ca/opioids.

Recovery Alberta provides comprehensive and accessible recovery-oriented mental health and addiction services to all Albertans.

Help for your opioid use disorder

We're here to support your recovery

Face withdrawal together

Withdrawal happens when opioids use is reduced or suddenly stopped. Symptoms include:

- Nausea
- Vomiting
- Diarrhea
- Muscle aches
- Insomnia (not able to sleep)
- Irritability
- Anxiety / depression
- Sweating
- Runny nose
- Cravings.

We'll help you get through withdrawal safely, more comfortably and together.

How can we help?

We work together with you to decide which treatment options fit your recovery goals. Treatment works best when it combines medication and support such as:

- Medication (reduces cravings and withdrawal symptoms). One or a mix of:
 - Buprenorphine/naloxone (Suboxone®)
 - Buprenorphine extended release (Sublocade®)
 - Methadone
 - Slow-release oral morphine (Kadian®)
 - Hydromorphone (only in clinics license to provide Narcotic Transition Services, specialized care).
- Psychosocial support
 - Peer support, social worker, addiction counselling, help with housing, finance, legal, relationships, and mental health treatment.

What do we offer you?

In our program, you'll find trained and caring staff along with services such as:

- Medical assessment and ongoing medication prescriptions
- Education and support to manage your health
- Education and support to reduce the harms of substance use
- Access to naloxone kits
- Screening and treatment of infections
- Individual and group addiction and mental health counselling and recovery skill-building
- Referrals to specialized services and other recovery supports
- If you are unable to stabilize on OAT treatment medication, we offer Narcotic Transition Services specialized care in Edmonton, Calgary, Grande Prairie, Red Deer, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat.
