

ACCESS IMPROVEMENT

CONVERSATIONS, CONNECTIONS & RESOURCES

Ahhh, spring. Winter jackets are stored, rubber boots are pulled out, and it is just a little easier to get moving. An early spring is most welcome, especially in Alberta, and this year is no exception.

At Access Improvement, we're noting the rejuvenation of the season with some spectacular events, significant developments and a new awareness of how to improve the patient journey. We've got some great news about developments for Nephrology, opportunities to join the conversation at the Mackid Symposium, and of course another big idea from eReferral.

We also chat with three patients and a case manager at Edmonton's Musculoskeletal Centre about how the care pathway has made a huge difference to the quality of care patients can expect.

Spring is here! Let's roll up our sleeves and start sharing the access improvement stories that are making an impact!

CASE MANAGERS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Case managers and care pathways have made a big impact on MSK patient journeys

Stella Callender always had an interest in orthopedics, but after she completed her nursing education there weren't a lot of positions available. Working first in neuro-trauma and then at the hospital orthopedic unit, it was another twelve years before she was READ MORE
