

Hearing Screening Pass Result

Your Baby Passed the Hearing Screening

What does a pass result mean?

A pass result means that permanent hearing loss wasn't found, and your baby is hearing well today.

You know your baby best. It's a good idea to monitor your baby's hearing even after a pass result. If you are ever concerned about your baby's hearing, speak with your baby's health care provider or call Health Link at 811.

What are the next steps?

Your baby doesn't need another hearing test

- Share the hearing screening result with your baby's health care provider.
- Continue to monitor your baby's hearing using the checklist on the back of this handout.

Your baby will need a follow-up hearing test in 6 to 8 months

Your baby is hearing well today, but has certain health issues (risk factors) that may increase the chance of developing hearing loss at a later time. To find out more about these risks, contact your baby's health care provider.

Identified risk factor(s):

- Share the hearing screening result with your baby's health care provider.
- A referral will be made to community audiology for your baby to have a follow-up appointment in 6 to 8 months.
