

Title Introductory Information for the Transitions in Care Community of Practice

Are you working to improve transitions in care in Alberta? Join a new community of practice (CoP) to network with others who are striving for the same goal: person centred transitions.

As a member of the Transitions in Care CoP you will . . .

- Have the opportunity to join virtual meetings to network across the province
- Share and hear about lessons learned and 'practice pearls' which support leading operational practices
- Share and learn about patient outcomes and experiences
- Decrease duplication by sharing tools and resources
- Be part of a group striving together for innovation

This CoP is being organized by the Primary Health Care Integration Network, part of the Strategic Clinical Network™ family, to support zones with their transitions in care work.

What are transitions in care Transitions in care?

What are transitions in care Transitions in care are a set of actions designed to ensure the safe and effective coordination and continuity of care as patients experience a change in health status, care needs, healthcare providers or location (within, between or across settings, including home).

Get Involved

As we prepare to launch the Transitions in Care CoP, we want to hear from you.

 To participate or learn more: PHC.IntegrationNetwork@ahs.ca

Pass it on!

Please share this information with anyone who may be interested. This includes improvement teams, leadership, medical directors, PCN team/members and transition coordinators.

