Pregnancy health fair offers information and resources in Fort McMurray

FORT McMURRAY — New and expectant parents in the Fort McMurray area are invited to learn more about pregnancy, birth and early childhood resources at an upcoming pregnancy health information fair.

Hosted by Primary Care Alberta (PCA), the free event is planned for Saturday, November 7 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Fort McMurray Community Health Services, 113 Thickwood Blvd.

Community healthcare professionals and public health providers will be on hand to meet one-on-one with parents to answer questions about pregnancy, birth and early childhood. Prenatal immunizations will also be available during the event.

Information and resources will be available on a variety of topics, including routine childhood immunizations, infant feeding and nutrition, infant safety, sexual and reproductive health, pelvic health, mental health, local PCA prenatal education classes, and other community healthcare services.

Representatives from other local organizations will also be available to provide information and resources on the services they offer.

Local residents looking for more information and support related to pregnancy, birth or early childhood support can call Fort McMurray Community Health Services at 780-791-6247.

Care is a lifelong commitment for Primary Care Alberta. We support primary healthcare across the province, improving access to care providers and offering front-line services through Health Link 811 and public health teams. Throughout the health journey, we are by your side – managing, preventing and reducing illness. Along with our partners, we nurture the connections our communities need to thrive and strengthen the health of all Albertans.
