‘Time is brain’: seconds count when treating stroke patients

RED DEER – There are 17 designated stroke centres across five Alberta Health Services zones.

Over the past year, the average time it takes to treat stroke patients with the clot-busting drug tPA from their time of arrival at hospital decreased across all zones.

Here is additional data on progress made in the Central Zone compared to provincial averages. It’s important to note average treatment times can be inflated by cases that involve difficult diagnoses or other life-threatening complications, such as cardiac events.

Zone/Facilities	Average DTN time (2012)	Average DTN time (Oct. 2016-Dec. 2016)	Percentage reduction in average DTN time (From 2012 to Oct. 2016-Dec. 2016)	Number of stroke patients (Oct. 2016-Dec. 2016)	Fastest DTN Since start of initiative
Provincial	70 minutes	32 minutes	54%	118 patients	6 minutes
Central Zone Red Deer Regional Hospital Centre, Wainwright Health Centre, St. Mary’s Hospital (Camrose - Covenant), Lloydminster Hospital	79 minutes	35 minutes	56%	13 patients	14 minutes

Stroke teams continue to work toward achieving a provincial average door-to-needle time of 30 minutes.

Know the signs of stroke

Improving treatment times for stroke patients arriving at hospital is just one part of the equation in helping people survive without debilitating long-term consequences. It’s critical to recognize the symptoms of a stroke and seek emergency medical care immediately – time is brain.

You can use the mnemonic device FAST to help remember the signs of a stroke.

Face: is it drooping?

Arms: can you raise both?

Speech: is it slurred or jumbled?

Time: to call 9-1-1 right away.
